Tracking and Arming Algorithms for Information Security - webrellas ====== webrellas Another talk I found very interesting. The concepts presented are of course high level, and the figures speak for themselves. But the presentation in general gives a lot of insight into the mechanisms that govern how cloud firms/governments collect, and potentially misappropriate user data. As for the presentation specifically, the following points stood out: 1\. Policy/Signatures can be "hard-coded", which is typically a bad idea. This directly opens the door for bugs. 2\. A lot of the "hiding" that is done to protect your data is in reality simply obfuscation (so it's not like the machine couldn't break the obfuscation, it's just harder to do so.) 3\. It is easy to take the user "off-line" in the case of a data breach, a hidden process of OS killing takes care of that. Q: Connecting UDP and a multicast (SASL) server We are attempting to connect a UDP end point to a multicast server. On the server side we have a SASL implementation. We are running on Windows. We are experiencing the following: UDP client: initializing control channel... Session: lm=lm://127.0.0.1:47580/protocols/heimdal/{} Session finished; to retry, add lm://0.0.0.0:47580/ to the connection list multicast server: Initializing... Session: lm=lm://127.0.0.1:47582/protocols/sasl/ Session finished; to retry, add lm://0.0.0.0:47582/ to the connection list The problem is that when we try to connect with (e.g.) telnet 127.0.0.1 47782 we receive the error: (...) SASL cannot be performed on a unicast socket. Is
