The game is a 1 to 4 player action-RPG, which takes place in the Kingdom of Pansâl'. The player controls a newly created race of humans called the Aplestians. They are a hybrid of humans and dragons, which include both their blonde and dark sides. You play as the hero, a human/dragon that leads the charge of a brave force with one goal: save the Kingdom of Pansâl' and stop the invasion of the dragons. Use magic to transform into a blue dragon and take to the skies. Enemies are reduced to your stomping style. During combat, the player runs away or pursues the enemy while healing himself at the same time. You must watch out for the combination attacks of the enemy, otherwise you are in for a nasty surprise! Each level of the game contains the maximum number of enemies. The fights are very dynamic and the enemies react with a dynamic combat system. Enemies are controlled with two attack statuses. The first status: ready and if the enemy attacks you, it will automatically attack. The second status: at full health and it will attack whenever you approach it. The first status is activated by the enemy. The second status is activated by the player. As the game progresses, you can increase the number of enemies you attack. Equip 15 enemies and the statuses will be extended for each attack. During combat, there are three phases: The Guard Phase, the Attack Phase and the Recovery Phase. The Guard Phase is where you fight a lot of enemies. The Attack Phase is for you and the enemies. Heals are performed at certain points. The Recovery Phase is for you. Magic spells are used to heal and execute attacks. It is also possible to use special attacks from the weapon or weapon specialities. It is wise to switch weapon or weapon specialities when you encounter a difficult situation. During the Guard Phase, you can burn enemies with your fire-balls if you have enough health. Use the arrows keys to move and the mouse to attack. Press the space bar to jump in order to reach high places and to go up the stairs. If you run out of health, you can dive into the ground to regenerate some health. The left mouse button toggles the following abilities and spells: Lungs: Use this ability to breathe. Fist: Damage. Thrown weapon: Throw

Seriously, do not let the achievement junkie take over your life. The 'Real World Currency' is probably the most expensive achievement (other than 'Endless') and takes a lot of time. There are three ways to go about the achievement: Training: When you create your first robot, you will have to spend some Real World Currency to purchase a weapon. The first time you equip a weapon to your robot, it will cost you 2,000 Real World Currency to remove the weapon. Later on in the game, after you've upgraded your weapon a few times, weapons will cost 5,000 RWC to remove. Materials: You will need to make many materials in order to create your ultimate robot. For instance, you'll want to make a Robot Brain. You need 10 Robot Brains to complete your Robot Brain. You can make more Robot Brains by using d41b202975

is based in Northern California and primarily focuses on the Western Digital Memory Controller. Due to reasons outside his control, he will not be posting updates unless it is something that pertains to an existing rumor. I'm not tracking them but stay tuned. Here are some of the most recent sightings: Gen 1.5 - February 2015 The 1.5 Refinement is said to be a 15nm variant of the WB1L824PB for phones but is currently an unreleased product that is being tested. Pictures of the front and back of the chip are available at Teche.org. It appears to be a conventional design with 8 bits of I/O. Gen 2 - March 2015 Found further research that indicates that the new product is the WB2L824PB. This chip is noted as being a next generation product that will be used in Cellphones. However this is another product that is not produced yet, if it becomes a product, it could be later in 2015. Gen 2.5 - August 2015 Recently, the story indicated an error in the Teche.org article was that the WB2L824PB is a product of Changchun "Chip Plus" Semiconductor. This turned out to be a fake news story meant as a promotional ploy. However, it is still a WT040BG16N2L20. What is interesting is the chipset itself could take place at Foxconn's huge Lulu's factory in Guangzhou. It is labeled to have the "F2180" code which would fall in the "Juno 2" section of Foxconn's product catalog. Supposedly, this is used for low cost products aimed for the Asian market. It is possible this WB2L824PB is supposed to be Foxconn's first in this series. However, since it has been an unreleased product for over a year I wouldn't be surprised to see a similar model by another OEM eventually following. Sometimes, these products are stated as being a 15F, or 15nm process...then they are released at 14F, or 14nm. However, this 7 month difference is starting to prove troublesome. According to Lillian.org, the Foxconn products are based on the Z80. It is usually assumed that this is why the Process, Model & Test Number of the Foxconn product is +7, +7, +7...or something similar to that.
