Is there a way to access the.bat file in a Command Prompt window. I see that there is a.bat file for a main program, but is there a way to access.bat files that are not part of the main program? As an example, is there a way to access "c:\bin\Script1.bat" directly? A: Yes, with just a couple of ways, but the easiest is to add \. For example, if the file is named app.bat, you can write "app.bat" and it will show up as "app.bat" with a dot in the path. This is pretty much how the shell expands PATH variables, so if you have a bash shell, you can simply write bash app.bat And it will go. You can also use the cmd.exe shell to write a standalone batch file. The syntax is a bit more wordy, but for an example, this is the version of the same thing: cmd.exe /C app.bat If you want to access a file that isn't in the current directory, you can specify a directory in the path, using the /D switch. So if you're in the folder C:\User\Bob\My Documents and you want to run a file in C:\bin\MyDir\myDirFile.bat, you can write: C:\User\Bob\My Documents\MyDir\myDirFile.bat If you're in a directory on the server where the executable is, you can use the \Server\path\to\executable\file.bat syntax. To determine whether an immediate intervention is effective in improving blood pressure, cholesterol and HbA1c levels in individuals at high risk for developing diabetes and cardiovascular disease. A health promotion program at an urban community college. The study population was made up of university students, 20 years and older. Participants were randomly assigned to either the intervention group (a one-hour lecture on hypertension, diabetes and hypercholesterolemia) or the control group (regular course of mathematics and English). The mean blood pressure and cholesterol levels at baseline and at follow-up were compared between the two groups, using Student t-test, and chi-squared test for binary outcomes. The Cohen's d index was used to estimate effect size. The proportion of participants who had a significant reduction in cholesterol, HbA1c and blood pressure was significantly higher in the intervention group compared to the control group (83.3% vs. 40%). The size of the effect was also positive (Cohen's d: 0.80). The blood pressure decreased by 4.7 mm Hg systolic and 3.0 mm Hg diastolic; cholesterol decreased by 9.6 mg/dL; and HbA1c decreased by 0.7%. An immediate, one-hour educational program focused on diabetes and cardiovascular disease significantly improved blood pressure, cholesterol and HbA1c levels in individuals at high risk for developing diabetes and cardiovascular disease. The size of the effect was very large, and the control group had much larger reduction in blood pressure and HbA1c levels than was expected from the ordinary course of mathematics and English. This study opens a window of opportunity to improve blood pressure, cholesterol and HbA1c level in high-risk individuals.110827 Two Little Girls Falling Off The Roof Of A Building. Whilst
